Dear Sir,

I am writing to draw your attention to the reports circulating abroad of the use of torture and the curious cases of 'disappeared prisoners'.

Torture has been outlawed by the United Nations and condemned worldwide by responsible governments.

The cases of prisoners who have been taken from home or place of work and whose whereabouts is then denied to their families is very distressing.

As head of an important part of the news media I urge that you use whatever powers you have at your disposal to investigate these matters as soon as possible.

Yours respectfully

Miss. C. A. Leonard.
